National Endowment for the Humanities

Every summer the NEH hosts the Landmarks of American History and Culture Workshop. These institutes provide the opportunity for K-12 educators to engage in intensive study and discussion of important topics in American history and culture. I attended the workshops hosts by the Chicago Architecture Foundation & the East West Center at Pearl Harbor during the summer of 2009 and found them extremely rewarding.

House Historians Fellows Program

The Fellows Program is a week-long interdisciplinary workshop for high school teachers, focused on the history and practice of the House of Representatives. I have attended this workshop twice; most recently as a Master Teacher. I can't say enough about the knowledge gained through this "behind the scenes" experience.

Gilder Lehrman Summer Institutes for Teachers

The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History hosts intensive summer seminars for teachers featuring renowned American. These summer institutes are located in cities across the United States and the United Kingdom.

Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research (SIEPR)

SIEPR provides a summer institute, usually in August, that features content and speakers on current Economic issues.
